

Anna Miks

Member of Competition Council of the GVH

Anna Miks obtained a law degree at the Eötvös Loránd University in 2002. She studied at Lund University in Sweden where she was attending European Union law courses. She started working as an investigator at the Hungarian Competition Authority (GVH) in 2002 and worked at several units of the GVH. As a member of ECN working groups she gained experience in cooperation among competition authorities. In 2004, she was a trainee at the ECN Unit of the European Commission's DG Competition. She has been working for the GVH's Competition Council since 2009. She has been a member of the Competition Council since 2011.

She played a leading role in the development of the GVH's leniency policy and made several presentations and publications in cartel matters.